Carter's Curvers Fiercely Batted by Six Jobs Since May 21 Have Been Traced to Them.

Detective-Sergeant McCauley, aided by four others of Inspector McLaughlin's staff, has succeeded in bagging the gang of burglars who have perpetrated all the big robberies in New York and Brooklyn during the last three months.

The chief of the gang is Michael Kurtz alias "Sheeny Mike," who has a worldwide reputation as an expert cracksman, and whose operations have extended to nearly all the capitals of Europe.

The others are George H. Wilson alias "Jack Mahoney," alias "Jack Sheppard;" Charles Wood, alias "Wright," alias "Fowler;" George A. Miller, alias "Malloy," and Michael Wagner, a nephew of Sheeny Mike. All of them were remanded by Justice Ryan, in the Jefferson Market Police Court, this morning.

Six burglaries have been traced to the gang since May 21, on which date they looted the dry-goods store of P. A. & L. F. Newman, in Washington street, near nnson street, Brooklyn.

It was "Sheeny Mike" and his gang who robbed the Brill Brothers' store at 211 Sixth avenue, thic city, May 26. Entrance was gained by tunnelling hole through the wall of an adjoining building. The safe was literally taken The burglars secured $350 in money

Suspicion pointed to "Sheeny Mike" as the chief of the gang, or, at least, the one who had laid the plans for the rob bery. Several other robberies having showed the handlwork of this notorious crook

Inspector McLaughlin detailed Detective-Sergeants McCauley, Cuff, Rebinson Meehan and Nugent on the case. The first arrest was made Thursday, The first arrest was made Thursday, and others followed at short intervals until last night, when the last of the gang was caged.

Among the victims of "Sheeny Mike" and his gang are T. Altschul & Co., wholesale liquor dealers at 60 College place, whose store was burglatized April 9. The safe was blown open and 254 in cash and valuable papers were taken.

354 in cash and valuable papers were taken.

April 18 Siaxinger & Son, sporting goods dealers at 19 East Fiftieth street, had their safe blown open and $300 taken.

May 21 the gaing transferred their operations to Brooklyn and visited the Newman Brothers, as related above.

They tried to blow open the safe, but failed, and carried off a lot of silk.

June 3 they effected an entrance to Clark Wilson's millinery store, 31 Myrtie avenue, but were scared nway before they had time to get anything.

The last job was the robbery of Goerke Bros.' dry-goods store, at Bedford avenue and South Eighth street, last Sunday.

"Sheeny. Mike's" picture in the Rogue's Gallery is 1,69. He is fortynine years old and has lived lately at 102 East Seventh street. He and Wilson were arrested at the point of revelvers at Eighth avenue and One Hundred and Fifteenth street Thursday afternoon by Detectives Cuff and Robinson. The prisoners broke away and fought hard to excape, but when the cold muzzles of the platois were pressed against their temples they surrendered. They were brought to Hendquarters handcuffel.

Kurtz began his career of crime years ago, and under the tutilage of the notorious "Billy" Porter, and soon became one of the most expert of that generation of theves. His associates were Eddle Goody, Johnny Irving, George Mason and "Mysterious Jimmy" Wilmot.

He first fell into the clutches of the police in February, 1877, when he was arrested for robbing the dry-goods store of Henjamin & Co., 315 Broadway, He got away with $6,000 worth of silks and cloaks, only a part of which was recovered. Owing to the inability of his victim to identify him he was discharged after a few months in the Tombs.

He then went to Boston where he was arested and sentenced to twelve years in Charlestown Prison, for burglary. He made himself sick while in prison, by drinking soap-water. While in the hospital he made an incision in his side from which pus flowed freely. The prison physicians said he could not live a month, Gov. Ben Butler pardoned him Oct. 19, 1882. In company with "Johnny" Love, robbed the Italian-American Bank of $5,000, but was discharged for lack of evidence. He was next arrested by Detective William McLaughlin, now Inspector, Aug. 27, 1883, on a warrant from Washington, D. C., charging him with the larceny of $6,000 worth of diamonds and lewelry. He was sentenced to the Fire County Penitentiary for a short term. In 1834 he and twko others robbed M

He was assisted by Pete McKenna, a life convict; Steve Boyle and Shang Hawley, all notorious New York criminals and all desperate free.

Trains at that time ran through and under what were then known as the prison quarries. Wood had made wood models of revolvers which he blacked and silvered so cleverly ns to pass for the genuine article.

He picked out his engineer and one quiet day he and his pals, who were at work in the quarries with other convicts, jumped on the engine, and pointing the wooden pistois at the engineer and fireman scared them off. Wood then took hold of the lever, while McKenna uncoupled the engine from the train. It was all done quicker than it takes to tell it, and before the engine and the convicts were speeding away.

Two miles out of the village they abandoned the engine and took to the woods. Wood was arrested by Detective Titus in St. Louis three months later and brought back.

He escaped by another close ruse Nov. 18, 1875 and was arrested the February following, and taken to Auburn where he served a year for safe-robbery. Again in May, 1882, he was sent from Washington, D. C. to the Eric County penitentiary for eight years for assault with intent to kill. He escaped two weeks after his incarceration and went to Michigan, where he committed several burglaries and served parts of several terms. He escaped from Jackson Prison twice.
